The Loudoun Department of Mental Health, Substance Abuse and Developmental Services' offers Consumer Directed (CD) personal assistance services help individuals with their daily needs, such as dressing, bathing, eating, and assistance with self-administration of medication. Consumer Directed personal assistance services may also be used to support individuals with their activities of daily living at work and other places in their communities.

Individuals who receive services through the Intellectual Disabilities (ID) Medicaid Waiver can select Consumer Directed (CD) Services or agency-directed services, or a combination of the two, when developing plans to help them live successfully in their communities. Consumer Directed Services allow the individual to be the employer. As the employer, the individual is responsible for hiring, training, supervising, and terminating his or her employees. When services are consumer-directed, the individual and sometimes his or her family decide what service is needed, who will provide it, when it will be provided, where it will be provided, and how it will be provided.

The amounts and types of supports and services that individuals receive from caregivers vary greatly from person to person due to individual circumstances and preferences. The program is coordinated through a service facilitator who oversees the contract, develops and monitors individual service plans, supervises caregivers to ensure effective and appropriate delivery of services to the consumers, and responds to parents, families, or guardians' needs and concerns.
